

Please do not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's telephone Privacy Law. This law has been very effective in my family's life since it went into effect and had nearly stopped phone solicitation from unwanted marketers. I call whom I want to deal with and do not want to be begged for a service I do not want. I used to receive upwards of five to six calls a day before the law went into effect, now I go for days without any. Perhaps I get one or two a week, but that is rare now. I don't know how else to tell you how effective this law has been. If you have to do anything, please consider working with states who do not have a comparable law and do not touch states with effective laws. I would prefer seeing you attack the email spam problem which is now almost unbearable in volume and trashy content. I will never buy from an unsolicited email, just as I won't buy from a similar phone call. Thank you for considering this. Gordon Kelley
